

Modern Slavery Statement

QED is a provider of assessment and audit services in the built environment, we strive to ensure building occupants enjoy an indoor environment that is comfortable, safe, healthy and productive. We operate from offices across Australia and on occasion, travel to other countries to undertake projects.

While we do not meet the annual consolidated revenue threshold that triggers the disclosure obligations under the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth), we have implemented a modern slavery statement in QED as a matter of integrity and business ethics.

Our Supply Chain

Our supply chains include businesses from the following sectors: analytical laboratories, scientific/IT equipment, sampling consumables, safety equipment, telecommunications, couriers/ travel services, fleet, and vehicle suppliers. Should a user of this statement require more detailed information, for example to conduct supplier auditing, please contact us.

Our Statement on Slavery

We are committed to ensuring that there is no modern slavery in our supply chains or in any part of our business. Our modern slavery statement reflects our commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships and to implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to ensure slavery is not taking place anywhere in our supply chains.

We have in place systems to:

- Identify and assess potential risk areas in our supply chains
- Mitigate the risk of slavery occurring in our supply chains
- Monitor potential risk areas in our supply chains

As part of our initiative to identify modern slavery and mitigate associated risks in our business and supply chain, we have taken steps to ensure our staff are trained to understand the risks of modern slavery in our supply chains and our business and all those in our supply chain and contractors comply with our modern slavery statement.
